NIH - Neuromodulation/Neurostimulation Device Development for Mental Health Applications (R01 & R21)

Descrição

The National Institutes of Health (NIH) (https://www.nih.gov/), a part of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, is the primary Federal agency for conducting and supporting medical research. Composed of 27 Institutes and Centers (http://www.nih.gov/icd/), the NIH provides leadership and financial support to researchers in every state and throughout the world.

The purpose of this notice of funding opportunity (NOFO) (https://grants.nih.gov/grants/guide/pa-files/PAR-25-287.html)   is to encourage applications seeking to develop the next generation of brain stimulation devices for treating mental health disorders. Applications are encouraged that will either 1) develop novel brain stimulation devices or 2) significantly enhance, by means of hardware/software improvements, the effectiveness of brain stimulation devices that are currently U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA)-approved or cleared.   Applications to this NOFO are not expected to be hypothesis-driven, but should propose design-directed, developmental, or discovery-driven technology research using integrative approaches. Although the application should focus on the engineering development and bench top testing of the tool, animal and limited, non-clinical trial human testing necessary to demonstrate initial proof of concept is allowable. This NOFO uses the R01 grant mechanism, encouraging longer term projects, whereas the companion NOFO (https://grants.nih.gov/grants/guide/pa-files/PAR-25-286.html), PAR-25-286 seeks grant applications encouraging shorter duration, high-risk studies.
